Visited Israel, Non-Jew Seeks Aid For Jews, Arabs

The nations of the world must jointly seek a remedy for the "deplorable" plight of the Arab and Jewish victims of the recent war in Palestine, the Rev. Dr. John Paul Jones, pastor of the Union Church of Bay Ridge (Presbyterian), 201 Eightieth Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., said in his sermon.

Reporting on a two-week visit to Israel, made under the auspices of the American Christian Committee for Palestine, Dr. Jones declared that "one cannot expect the Jews to forget that six Arab nations attacked them simultaneously in defiance of the United Nations, nor should any of us forget that the Arab lands are enormous and their resources great if they are properly used for the common people."

Israeli officials, he told his congregation, believe they can work out their problems with the Arabs and the rest of the world.

"Time and again," said Dr. Jones, "they insisted that the main difficulty with the Arabs came from a third party, meaning the mandate government, and, in addition, from political rivalries among the great powers. They acknowledge that Jews and Arabs are dependent on each other, and they believe the Arabs know this.

"The dominant impression that I gained in Israel was a people full of vitality, confidence, and hope. Suffusing all this was a spirit of almost exuberant joy that at last they were 'on their own.'

"I found little resentment or bitterness. Israel suffered heavily [illegible] in the loss of life and property during the recent war with the Arabs. They feel that the blunders of the last months of the mandate government are largely responsible. But they seem anxious to forget the [illegible] past and I found no

Iraqi Student Wants To Stay In United States

An Iraqi Jewish student, citing anti-Jewish persecution in his homeland, has formally applied to be classified as a displaced person and permitted to stay in America under the displaced persons act. The case was formally pleaded before the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Philadelphia, the American Jewish Congress, 1834 Broadway, reported. Decision has been reserved.

It was believed the first time any one in the U.S. had sought such status under the 1948 act's definition of a D. P. as "a person displaced from the country of birth, or nationality, or of his last residence, as a result of events subsequent to the outbreak of World War II and who cannot return to any of such countries because of persecution or fear of persecution on account of race, religion or political opinions."

The student, whose name was withheld for fear of retaliation against his family in Bagdad, was represented by Will Maslow, general counsel of the Congress, and Irving Jaffe, its immigration specialist. He has been attending an Eastern college, and his Iraqi passport expires next month, says the New York Herald Tribune.

An affidavit by Dr. Nehemiah Robinson, director of the Institute of Jewish Affairs of the World Jewish Congress, asserted that Iraqui press and government propaganda and persecution of Jews dated back to the end of the British mandate in 1932.

Since World War II and the Palestine War, the situation of the Jewish Community in the Arab country, "long precarious, is now desperate," the affidavit asserted. The affidavit said exit visas to Jews had usually been refused since

WARNS OF LOSSES BY ASSIMILATION

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the executive committee of the World Jewish Congress, reported in New York a tendency of Eastern European Jews to separate themselves from Jews in countries outside of the Iron Curtain.

He urged 100 rabbis at the annual Rabbinical Institute of Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, 40 West Sixty-eighth Street, to help maintain contact between all parts of the "Jewish world." He emphasized the need for the American Jewish community to foster a cultural program for Jews in Central and South America.

"Unless we see to it that the younger generation which is growing up in Catholic countries gets a Jewish education, we may lose one half of them by assimilation," Dr. Goldmann remarked.

He named the major problem of American Jewish life today the maintaining of emotional and spiritual support from other countries and added that all Jews needed the cultural and spiritual qualities that only Israel could give them.

Asks Americans To Back Israel

Jacob S. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Congress of Industrial Organizations, said in New York that Americans, regardless of [illegible] state "is a great bastion in the East against all anti-democratic aggressors.

Mr. Potofsky, who recently returned from Israel, spoke at a dinner in honor of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt given by the Clothing, Woollen and Allied Industries Division of the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York, at the Waldorf-Astoria. An illuminated scroll praising Mrs. Roosevelt for her "enrichment of American life" was presented to her.

Mr. Potofsky, in appealing for aid to Israel through the U.J.A., said:

"Why must Israel be aided? Israel must be aided because it is the citadel of democracy in the Middle East. Israel is a true democracy. It is led by great statesmen who have learned the meaning of freedom the hard way. As western democrats we have a stake in Israel beyond our religious or other special interests. If we love our way of life, if we are determined to resist encroachment on it, Israel is a great bastion in the East against all anti-democratic aggressors."

Mr. Potofsky said that the Israeli Government would need $800,000,000 to carry out its four-year austerity program. Returning from a seven-week trip to the Middle East and Europe, Mr. Potofsky told reporters, in his office at 15 Union Square, that the principal and immediate need of the new nation was for housing.

New immigrants, coming in at times at the rate of 1,000 a day, live in former British barracks and tents under "heartbreaking conditions," he said. Their morale and spirit have not been broken, he declared, and their patriotism, idealism and love of their new country are inspiring.

The financial aid sought by Israel, Mr. Potofsky asserted, is not charity but loans either from Government or private sources on an investment basis. He predicted that American-owned corporations would be organized "to help the Israeli Government and people to help themselves on a business basis."

He stressed that Israel needed not so much imports but United States capital, experts, machinery and know-how. Mr. Potofsky said the Economic Cooperation Administration was making an extraordinary contribution to European recovery and helping keep Western countries in the democratic sphere.

He said he would make a report on what he found to Philip Murray, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, says the New York Times. He was accompanied on his official CIO "exploratory" trip by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, and Maxwell Brandwen, general counsel of Amalgamated.

Z.O.A. Head Charges Plot To Thwart Israel

A campaign to prevent Israel from developing as a free and strong state is now being waged on several fronts, it was asserted by Daniel Frisch, who took office as president of the Zionist Organization of America. He said that unless President Truman could be persuaded to "intervene", there was danger that the campaign might succeed in its immediate objective.

This objective, Mr. Frisch said, is the blocking of agreement on a peace treaty between Israel and the Arab states. The Zionist official, who is on a six-week visit to Israel, contended that "pro-Arab officials" in the State Department were among the leading participants in the campaign.

In a prepared statement and then in a mass interview in the offices of the American Zionist Council in 342 Madison Avenue, New York, Mr. Frisch said that Mr. Truman's help was needed.

"Unless Mr. Truman intervenes as he did in the past in the Palestine question, there is danger that pro-Arab officials in the State Department, who are working in close coordination with the British Foreign Office, will prevent the much-needed consummation of a peace treaty," he declared.

In response to questions, Mr. Frisch indicated that efforts to present the Zionist point of view to the President were now being made, but he declined to be more specific, according to the New York Times.

However, he said that in the light of Mr. Truman's frequently expressed support of the Israeli cause, he felt that the President

Fraternal Order Bars Communists

Construction of a rehabilitation hospital in Tel Aviv, Israel, at a cost of $100,000 as a memorial to Col. David Marcus, killed on June 10, 1948, while leading the Israeli forces against the Arabs, was voted by the annual convention of the Independent Order of Brith Abraham, in South Fallsburg, N.Y.

Of the project's cost, $50,000 will be borne equally by Brith Abraham and the Brooklyn League of Red Mogen Dovid. The memorial to Colonel Marcus will take the place of a proposed blood-processing laboratory originally planned.

The convention adopted two resolutions, one to bar from membership in Brith Abraham, oldest national Jewish fraternal order in the United States, any person who supports the world Communist movement in the United States, and the other to contribute $15,000 to the United Jewish Appeal.

The chief speaker was Dr. David Petegorsky of New York, national executive director of the American Jewish Congress. He declared that the Allied denazification program in Germany had broken down. Urging a United States investigation, he warned:

"If it is not investigated, it may have consequences as disastrous to world peace in this decade as was the Munich pact of 1938."

Helped To Found Bronx Hospital

Dr. Alexander Goldman, seventy-seven, a founder and first president of the Bronx Hospital, died at his home, 1166 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, New York.

Dr. Goldman was born in Moscow, Russia, and came to the U.S. in 1890 after being graduated from the Sorbonne University in Paris. He was graduated from the New York College of Pharmacy and practiced pharmacy on the East Side while studying medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He was graduated from that college in 1906.

With the late Dr. Alexander Lambert, who was personal physician to Theodore Roosevelt, Dr. Goldman established the first gastro-enterological clinic at the Vanderbilt Clinic of the Presbyterian Hospital.

CLASS IN COOKERY

one-half pound salted butter
one and three-quarters cups white sugar four cups flour
four teaspoons baking powder four eggs

Crumble dry ingredients with soft butter, in mixing bowl. Put two eggs in glass, fill glass up with pineapple juice; beat eggs, and add to dough. Put remaining two eggs in glass, fill up with pineapple juice again, beat eggs, and add to batter. Mix well. Add one teaspoon vanilla. If dough is too thick, add a very small quantity of milk. Pour into a large greased rectangular pan, and bake for about one hour in a 375-degree oven.

Mrs. I. Mintz,

4484 Melrose Avenue, Montreal.

CHIFFON CUSTARD PIE

one and one-half cups fine graham wafers one-third cup very soft butter
one-quarter cup brown sugar

Measure crumbs, sugar and butter in a bowl and mix thoroughly for the crust. Turn into a buttered nine-inch pie pan, and press firmly to bottom and sides of pan. Chill while making filling.

Filling:

one tablespoon plain gelatine
one and one-half cups rich milk
two eggs separated
one-half cup granulated sugar
one-quarter cup cold water two thinly shaved semi-sweet chocolates one-quarter teaspoon salt
one-half teaspoon vanilla one teaspoon almond flavouring three drained maraschino cherries

Soften gelatine in cold water. Scald milk in upper part of double boiler. Beat egg yolks slightly, and stir, with one-quarter cup of the sugar. Add salt. Slowly stir in part of scalded milk, return all to top of double boiler, and cook over hot water (not boiling), stirring constantly until the custard thickens. Remove from heat and add softened gelatine. Stir until gelatine is dissolved; and cool. Stir flavouring into cooled custard, stir occasionally until mixture begins to set. Beat egg whites until stiff, and gradually beat in the remaining one-quarter cup sugar. Add the meringue and chopped cherries to the slightly set custard mixture and fold until thoroughly combined. Turn mixture into thoroughly chilled graham wafer crust, and spread smoothly. Sprinkle top with shaved chocolates and then chill complete pie until ready for use.

The Furniture Buyer

By Oscar Cohen

The driver of the car saw the empty parking spot opposite Max Grunsky's furniture store and with quick, deft movements of the wheel backed in.

"Right on the spot," he said to his companion. "That's luck. You stay here. I'll go in."

He slammed the door behind him and stood for a moment on the pavement. He was a thick-set man with a raw, uncouth face, powerful hands and thick fingers.

Max Grunsky was, as usual, lounging in the doorway. Behind him stretched a long, narrow passage with furniture piled high on both sides. It led into an office-recess at the back of the shop. A girl was in the office, reading the early afternoon newspaper. The furniture in the store was both old and new, mostly old, the products of add-up homes, broken homes and housewives' discards. As you walked along the "corridor", a score of dusty mirrors reflected your image.

The man on the pavement went up to Max Grunsky.

"Hello," he said.

Max Grunsky nodded cautiously.

"I've got some furniture to sell. Will you buy?"

"I buy furniture," said Mr. Grunsky, still cautiously.

"I've got a job in another town," said the man, "and I've got to sell quickly. Must start on the first of the month. Will you buy?"

"Where is the furniture?" Grunsky asked.

"At home."

People who had to sell up quickly gave Max Grunsky his best bargains. They sold cheaper than most. His profit on their articles was always good.

"Where do you stay?" he asked.

"Kensington," said the man.

So you never can tell, Grunsky thought. Can't always judge by appearances. The man didn't suggest solid, middle-class Kensington.

"I'll come now," Grunsky said. "Just wait."

He walked along the corridor to the office.

"Miss Friedstein," he said to the girl, "I'm going to see a house of furniture. I'll be back in an hour."

She nodded.

So Grunsky set off on a purchasing mission—a routine of his daily life. He took a seat at the back of the car and the driver made the necessary introductions. "My name is Van Wyk," he said. "And this is my brother-in-law, Mr. Richards," indicating the man beside him.

"How do you do?" Grunsky said politely.

"It's good furniture I got, Mr. Grunsky," Van Wyk said.

"Nice," replied Grunsky, and settled back in the car.

Grunsky was a cautious, inarticulate man. He was about 65, with a bald head, fringed with grey. He had arrived in South Africa at the turn of the century, a mere lad, his pockets empty and his hopes high. In broad detail his life pattern was that of the great majority of the Jewish immigrants of those days. He had started with the suit he had on — nothing else. He had been a "bottle and bag" hawker and had gradually developed into other branches of commerce. First, a small fruit store, then a little tea room. But the long hours of the tea room had worn him out and fifteen years ago he had gone into the furniture business in the heart of the city.

He had a wife and three children, two sons and a daughter. The sons were lawyers in partnership; his daughter was married. His struggle through life had been hard, but now he was "comfortable." He was thinking of retiring in a year or so. His life had been barren: he had reproduced his own kind, fed them, clothed them, educated them. But he himself had remained a confined personality, a man without mental, intellectual or spiritual adventures. His adventures, if any, were the usual adventures in pain common to the Jew.

He was deeply bruised, like most Jews, by the catastrophe of recent times. Six million dead was no phrase to him. It included the village in which he was born; it included a brother; and it included the thought that there, but for the grace of God, was his own fate.

He was never quite at ease when he went on these purchasing missions. He distrusted the Gentile. His appearance was unmistakeably Jewish and the whips and scorns of the years, the pin-pricks and the innuendoes, had left him uneasy in their company. He had also had one or two unfortunate experiences.

On one occasion he had visited a house and, after naming a sum for its furniture, had found himself the target of a fury that had left him frozen with fear. "You dirty Jew," the man had shouted, "£80 for furniture worth £150." The man had taken him by the scruff of the neck and thrown him out. He had never told anyone about the experience.

Then, again, he had been to homes, dirty and foul where the air had been rank, the rooms dark, where the empty beer and brandy bottles told their own story of degeneration, where wives had scowled at him and children with dirty noses, had sniggered.

He was never easy on these missions — but they were part of his life. Here was his profit and livelihood. He tried to make this profit with as few words as possible.

On this trip he was no different. Van Wyk told him, crudely, that he mustn't "jew" him, his furniture was good.

"My prices are good," Grunsky said coldly.

Richards, a swarthy man with his top row front teeth missing, attempted a crack. "Good for us as well as for yourself?"

In other days when he was building up his business, Grunsky would have insisted on his fairness. Now he said with a hint of anger: "You came to me. If you don't want to sell, you can take me back."

Van Wyk scowled at Richards. "Don't be cross, Mr. Grunsky," he said. "I want to sell."

The car went up Commissioner Street, through Jeppe into Kensington. It gathered speed. Grunsky became occupied with his own thoughts. Houses flew by and the car raced to the end of the suburb.

"Soon there?" Grunsky asked.

"Yes," Van Wyk said. "In a minute."

On went the car into the open road and the wide veld.

For the first time Grunsky became suspicious.

"Where are you taking me?" he demanded.

Van Wyk laughed and Richards turned round. There was a revolver in his hand.

"Never mind, Mr. Grunsky," he said, the gap of his missing teeth showing. "Just keep quiet. You don't want to be buried tomorrow, do you?" He laughed crudely.

Van Wyk was now touching nearly 75 miles an hour.

Grunsky's heart beat faster, but he was surprised at his own calm.

Canada's great Leader

LOUIS ST. LAURENT, Prime Minister of Canada

At the polls on June 27 the voter must ask himself, ahead of anything else, who should be head of the government.

In Louis St. Laurent, Canada [illegible] leader.

That he had high abilities of the mind was proved by his career in law. That he had wisdom in cabinet, unique gifts in parliamentary debate and a quick grasp of large affairs became clear as soon as he entered the Government. In international affairs, as one of the original advocates of the Atlantic Pact, he made himself a world figure who spoke out as no Canadian before him, in the councils of the nations.

He also revealed an understanding of ordinary people, because he is one of them.

This warm and essentially simple human being is the real St. Laurent, the product of the small [illegible] and the friendliness of country neighbors.

In blood, language and instinct he combines the qualities of two great races.

To the voter it is equally important that St. Laurent is the leader of a truly national party, with proved strength from coast to coast, the only party which can hope to form a stable government after the election. His character, his ability and his achievements have made him the leader of all the Canadian people.

"It's money you want?" he asked.

Richards' tooth gap showed wider. Van Wyk pressed the accelerator harder. They flew past hill and ploughed field. On . . . and on . . . and on. They passed isolated farm houses, occasional sidings. Thus they travelled, each tense with the drama of himself. At last Van Wyk stopped. The spot was very lonely.

Richards' revolver was still pointing at Grunsky.

"Get out," Van Wyk said.

Grunsky obeyed quickly. Richards kept Grunsky covered and Van Wyk, at the side of the road, glanced up and down. "All clear," he said and his hands dived into Grunsky's pockets. Grunsky stood passive.

They found £60.

"Anything more?" Van Wyk asked sharply.

"You have taken everything."

"All right, now you can walk home."

Grunsky was still surprised at his own calm. He sensed that, given no provocation, they intended no more than robbery.

"Can you give me ten shillings," he said. "Tram fare . . . taxi."

Richards laughed. "So you can go to the police quickly? You walk."

"Shall we take his jacket," Van Wyk asked.

Richards thought for a moment. "Yes," he said. "I'll sell it to a nigger."

Van Wyk took off Grunsky's jacket. Grunsky was left in his trousers, braces and shirt.

A motor car came over the hill. Van Wyk and Richards immediately crowded on to Grunsky. They had rehearsed for such an eventuality.

"Don't move," Van Wyk said between gritted teeth.

They waited, aiming at naturalness. Van Wyk took out a cigarette case and offered one to Richards and Grunsky.

"Take it," he whispered harshly to Grunsky.

Grunsky took it. Van Wyk lit it [illegible]

The car sped past them.

They all eased and breathed with relief.

"Kom Andries," Richards said.

"Hope you get back all right," Van Wyk grinned, climbing into the car. "And look," he threatened, "if you report this, you'll get a bullet in your brain."

He quickly turned round, pressed hard on the accelerator, changed into second, and drove off. Grunsky watched the car disappearing.

Slowly he started to walk in the same direction. The shadows on the hills and on the veld were growing larger. It was intensely quiet. This was God's peace. The setting afternoon sun would soon be giving colour and glory to the sky.

Grunsky walked slowly, a lonely, elderly figure in bracered trousers, every now and then turning round in the hope of a lift. He hadn't long to wait. He had only walked a mile or so when a car came over the hill.

That night his wife was on the phone. First she phoned the eldest son, then the second. She told them the full story. Had dad reported to the police? they asked.

"Do you want a bullet in the head?" she demanded querulously.

She phoned her daughter.

"Gerty," she said, "your father."

Max Grunsky leaned back in his arm chair. At the age of 65 one couldn't have an experience like his without suffering the effects of arrested shock. He closed his eyes, sighing wearily. Exhaustion left him limp.

"Gerty," his wife was saying, "two men came to dad's shop today . . . took him away in a car . . ." The words poured from her, hurried and tense. Her racial memory had been quickened. The bruises of earlier years opened up. It charged her voice with disquiet — "attacked him . . . with a revolver."

Grunsky sank deeper into his chair. "Nu, nu," he murmured in mild thankfulness, "a pogrom it wasn't."

NATIONAL IMMUNIZATION WEEK IS IN SEPTEMBER

Can all Canada's children be sure of a decent chance for good health? Can all Canada's children be protected against communicable diseases? As late as 1930, the communicable diseases remained children's vicious enemies. Today, with effective preventive measures, medical science has conquered many of these so-called "childhood diseases." First of these is smallpox.

Smallpox used to be among the most dreaded diseases because of its severity and the remaining disfigurement resulting from smallpox scars. It is estimated that in the 18th century sixty million of the inhabitants of Europe died of smallpox. It attacks all ages. There is no natural immunity against smallpox. Anyone who has not been vaccinated may catch it. Universal vaccination would wipe it out.

Diphtheria, too, is a "germ" disease which spreads very rapidly from person to person, either by direct contact or by means of "carriers." In the old days before the discovery of antitoxin and toxoid, it wiped out whole families and even communities because of its severity. It was dreaded almost as much as smallpox. It attacks people of every age, but it is much more apt to attack young children, especially those from six months old up. Toxoid will protect our children against diphtheria. Immunization by Toxoid given in the sixth month of life is now so safe and effective that no child should be denied its benefits. Diphtheria can be wiped out. United efforts will do this.

Whooping cough is the most likely of all communicable diseases to affect the youngest members of the family. Whooping cough vaccination given in infancy can greatly reduce the prevalence and probably the severity of the disease. It is the most deadly of all children's diseases.

Tetanus or lockjaw, is of interest not because of its prevalence but because of its severity and because it can be so completely prevented simply by using combined diphtheria and toxoid tetanus. These two diseases, diphtheria and tetanus, can be wiped out if every parent will avail himself of the scientific protective measures which are obtainable from the family doctor or the Health Department.

HOW TO HELP DROWNING VICTIMS

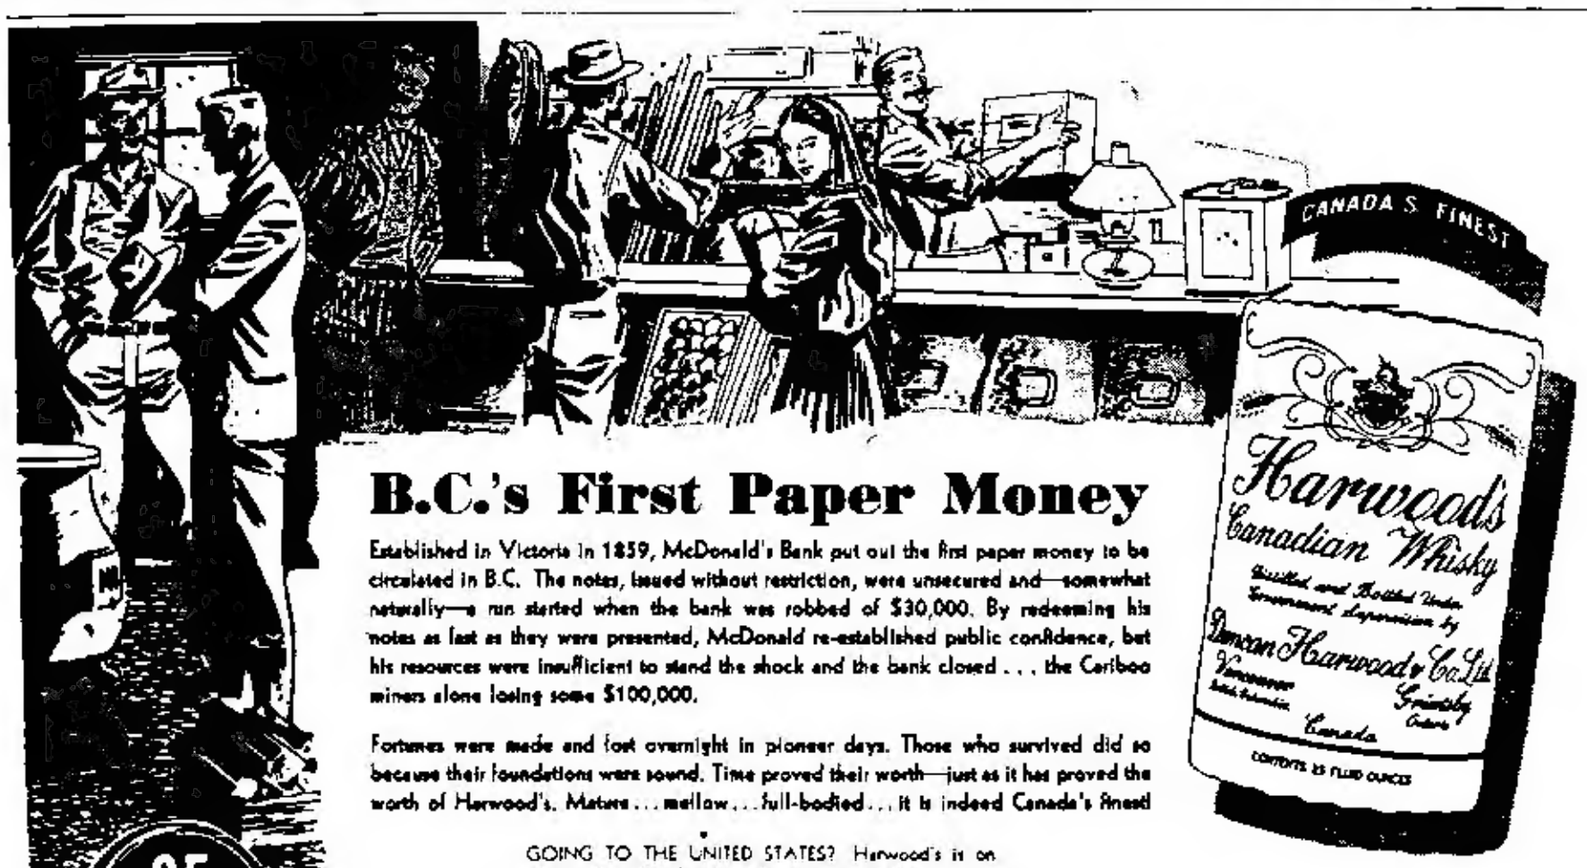
All drowning fatalities are not necessarily due only to carelessness on the part of the victims, it is stated by Dr. Gordon Bates, of Toronto, in an editorial in the current issue of Health Magazine, of the Health League of Canada. Too frequently there is lack of knowledge as to proper means of artificial respiration on the part of onlookers anxious to help. Dr. Bates is General Director of the Health League of Canada and editor of Health magazine.

The editorial goes on to say:

"Artificial respiration should always be immediate and continuously applied by persons with some knowledge of the procedure. There are misapprehensions, however, which in some cases have led to tragedy. In spite of widespread publicity about ten years ago in the Canadian press, there still remains in the minds of many the idea that a person who has been under water for more than a few minutes cannot be revived by artificial respiration. This is not true. There have been instances of individuals who have been revived after having been as long as half an hour in the water.

"A committee of the Health League of Canada under the leadership of the late Sir Frederick Banting, in 1938 issued a statement to the effect that artificial respiration should be kept up continuously for four hours or until there is evidence of rigor mortis in the victim. Yet is has been noticed in not a few cases recently that artificial respiration has been discontinued in a very short time and the victim pronounced dead. This action has presumably been decided on because there have been no signs of life."

The editorial states that in the same committee also found that "most drowning victims have no water in their lungs and that death results from spasm of the larynx. It is therefore most important that one should make certain in all of these cases that the air passages are free. The only known method of attempting to assure this end at present is to see that the patient's tongue is drawn well out during efforts of artificial respiration."



B.C.'s First Paper Money

Established in Victoria in 1859, McDonald's Bank put out the first paper money to be circulated in B.C. The notes, issued without restriction, were unsecured and—somewhat naturally—a run started when the bank was robbed of $30,000. By redeeming his notes as fast as they were presented, McDonald re-established public confidence, but his resources were insufficient to stand the shock and the bank closed . . . the Cariboo miners alone losing some $100,000.

Fortunes were made and lost overnight in pioneer days. Those who survived did so because their foundations were sound. Time proved their worth—just as it has proved the worth of Harwood's. Mature . . . mellow . . . full-bodied . . . it is indeed Canada's finest!

GOING TO THE UNITED STATES? Harwood's is on sale at all leading hotels, clubs, taverns and liquor stores.

8,000 Celebrate Old-New Feast

The mall in Central Park, in New York, was transformed for two hours into a section of Jerusalem, as 8,000 persons, most of them children and youths, celebrated the age-old festival of Bikkurim, a Jewish holiday in honor of the first fruits of the soil.

The holiday, unobserved after the Exodus of the Jews from the Holy Land, was revived twenty-six years ago in Haifa, Israel, by the Jewish National Fund. It was observed in America for the first time last year.

The pageant was a blending of the ancient and the modern, in which professional dancers, singers and actors performed together with youthful amateurs. Some wore the ancient flowing costumes of the Levites and the Yemenites and others the garb of modern Israeli farmers and soldiers.

In olden days, Jewish farmers from all corners of Israel in the early spring took their finest fruits, grains and vegetables to the temple in a Thanksgiving to God from the earth's bounty. The offerings were received by the rabbis who sang traditional songs and prayers. Families would meet on near-by hills, converting the countryside into a tent city.

Following the re-enactment of the ancient ceremony in New York, a troupe of dancers portrayed how modern Israelis work the soil of their homeland to produce fruits for a Bikkurim festival. The climax of the pageant showed an elderly Jew, whose family had been destroyed in the concentration camps of Germany, finally making his way to Israel where he was assisted through the portal by sturdy Israeli soldiers and farmers, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Reports I.R.O. Broke Word To Jewish Agency

The International Refugee Organization is running far behind schedule in finding homes for Europeans and will not complete its mission in the time allotted, a U.S. Senate investigating subcommittee reported.

The subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments issued a summary of a long inquiry into the outlook of 700,000 refugees still in Europe, and declared:

"If our Government is to maintain leadership in this vital matter it must carry out its declared policy (of asylum) by effective measures aimed at liberalizing the admission of displaced persons."

The IRO, an agency of the United Nations which would expire June 30, 1950, under present allocations of funds from contributing countries, was sharply criticized.

The subcommittee asserted that its investigation had shown that the IRO in May of 1948 broke an agreement with the Jewish Agency for Palestine, and that "considerable anti-Jewish feeling" was demonstrated "upon the part of a number of governments" represented in the IRO.

The result, the report declared, was that voluntary agencies "bore the entire expense" of a heavy movement of refugees to Israel, "even though $4,000,000 had been allotted for this purpose in the IRO budget."

Criticised also, however, were the world's Governments, including that of the United States, for not opening wider their doors to the dispossessed.

"Until the nations of the world, including the United States, are ready and willing to meet these problems in the only manner by which they can be met—by eliminating certain restrictions with respect to immigration—this problem will never be solved," said the subcommittee.

IS FIRST U.S. SPONSOR OF OFFICE BUILDING IN ISRAEL

Joseph Levy, president of Crawford Clothes, Inc., an American men's and women's wear chain of stores, and the Palestine Economic Corporation have agreed to become partners in the construction and mangement of the first American-sponsored office building in Tel Aviv, Israel, it was announced by Julius Simon, P.E.C. president. Mr. Levy flew to Israel to confer with P.E.C. officials on detailed construction plans and also to tour Israel.

A member of the P.E.C. board of directors and an active worker for the United Jewish Appeal and other philanthropies, Mr. Levy will hold a 75 per cent interest in the new building, which he intends to name in memory of his daughter, Miriam Levy Finn, who died in 1946. The P.E.C. will invest the balance. Approximate cost of the project is $500,000. Construction and management will be undertaken by a new company to be established soon.

Site of the building is the northwest corner of Achuzat Bait and Achad Haam Streets in one of Tel Aviv's finest business sections. It will be the largest project of its kind undertaken since the new state was proclaimed, and will provide space urgently needed by P.E.C. subsidiaries, Israeli firms, and foreign government bureaus. It will be five or six floors high and contain 80 to 90 offices and about 15 retail shops.

Because the building will be located on part of a two-and-one-half acre undeveloped tract in the heart of Tel Aviv, its construction, Mr. Simon said, is regarded as the first step in the possible development of a new first-class business building and shopping area in the heart of Tel Aviv. With that prospect in mind, Mr. Simon said, the P.E.C. has bought a quarter-acre plot adjoining the Levy project and hopes a similar venture will be undertaken there soon. The other two acres in the undeveloped section are held by a third party.

In his announcement Mr. Simon hailed Mr. Levy's "action as the best example of the kind of business interest that needs to be shown and expressed in behalf of the new State.

More than his funds, Mr. Levy is providing the American business experience and acumen that a young, republic like Israel requires. "Like so many other Americans, Mr. Levy has, of course, made his philanthropic gifts to Israel, but he also realizes there must be no delay in beginning to build a sound economic structure for permanent growth, one that will help make the country self-sufficient. This venture is an example of the many pioneering enterprises in which the P.E.C. has participated since its organization in 1926 — all of them based on the principle of private enterprise for the public good."

In addition to his clothing chain, Mr. Levy owns the Hotel McAlpin and other New York properties. He is active in the Federation of Jewish Charities and through the Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levy Foundation recently contributed $1,000,000 to Beth Israel Hospital of New York City for research in hypertension and malignant diseases, in memory of [illegible]. Mr. Levy's second trip to Israel. He first went there 24 years ago to see the newly opened Hebrew University.

The Palestine Economic Corporation, a Maine company, is the oldest and largest American development company operating in Israel. Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. is the chairman of the board and former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, a co-founder, is honorary chairman. The corporation participates in enterprises in the following fields: land development, housing, banking, water and electricity supply, food processing, chemicals, farming, potash, textiles and precision instruments. Capital and surplus as of December 31, 1948, totalled $5,890,769.

Meron, picturesque city which nestles at the side of Safed in Upper Galilee, became the site of a new religious settlement on Lag B'Omer day, the World Mizrachi headquarters reported. Fifty families, members of the Hapoel Hamizrachi, will be settled on the lands of Meron, hallowed in Jewish tradition because of the tomb of Rabbi Shimon bar Yochai, reputed author of the "Zohar". On Lag B'Omer, thousands of Israeli youth descend upon Meron and celebrate with dancing and singing around the shrines centered there.

The House On The Danube

By Harold Trobe, Joint Distribution Committee Director For Austria

Sixty years ago, when the Rothschild Hospital opened its massive doors in Wahringer Gurtel, Vienna, it stood as one of the finest health centers in Europe. This week the operating theatres, the laboratories and the clinics of the institution were no more. But the old building still served. Inside its long corridors, its ward rooms and its wide foyers were 8,000 homeless Jews from Hungary — the latest in a long train of post-war refugees who have come to Vienna in search of a new beginning, and have found in the Rothschild Hospital a place of shelter on their journey.

In the years preceding 1914, the hospital, founded by the Rothschild Foundation, was a busy, famous place, for Europe's most distinguished physicians and surgeons served on its staff. But the inflation that followed World War I wiped out the institution's limited assets and threatened to close the center. In the emergency, the Joint Distribution Committee, the then newly - formed American relief agency, made a substantial grant and the hospital remained open.

For another twenty years, thanks to JDC support, the hospital treated the sick. Then came Anschluss and World War II. In 1941 the building was seized and converted into a barracks for the local storm-trooper garrison. Hob-nailed boots rang through halls accustomed to the lusty wail of new-born infants. To emphasize the building's new role, the Nazi SS even sought to dig out the Mogen Dovids, inlaid in tile at the entrance to the hospital. But one star could not be destroyed and stands there still.

Then came 1944. With the penetration of Allied Aircraft deep into Europe, the SS barracks became a legitimate target for bombardment. Liberation a year later found one wing of the old hospital a gutted ruin. Every pane of glass had been blasted out. Most serious of all was the disappearance of every piece of equipment, from X-ray machines to surgical instruments. New window-panes were put in, the rubble was cleared away and the less-damaged sections were made habitable again. The hospital's priceless equipment, however, was never found.

But if the Rothschild Hospital ceased to function as a health center it was soon to fill an equally important role. In 1945, thousands of Jewish survivors freed from the concentration camps converged on Vienna. This was the first of the long and steady stream of refugees who have come to the city since V-E Day, the first to seek shelter in the hospital.

In July '46 a pogrom in Kielce, Poland, touched off the spark that resulted in the headlong flight of more than 100,000 Jews, many of whom came to Vienna. The city became the wide end of a funnel through which as many as 1,000 men, women and children passed every day. Again the Rothschild Hospital was pressed into emergency service as a transient center. Crowded in a manner that would have shocked its noted staff of former days, the building gave shelter to thousands at a time — hungry, weary refugees, for whom JDC had to provide food, clothing, blankets, bedding and medicines until they could pass on to the DP camps.

The following spring another crisis arose when thousands of Rumanian Jews came to Vienna completely dependent on JDC for the basic essentials of living. With funds it receives through the United Jewish Appeal it set up army cots in the hallways, the attic, the basement and the laundry. Hundreds were quartered in the outdoor courtyard, went to bed each night with a prayer that it would not rain. But again the crisis passed. The Rumanian refugees moved on to the DP camps. Many are now in Israel.

The year 1948 was one of relative peace and quiet for the Rothschild Hospital. Refugees continued to arrive, but in numbers easy to handle — 200 to 300 monthly. Then, this past spring, the trickle became a flood. By way of Czechoslovakia came 6,000 Jewish refugees from Hungary within the space of two months. Again the Rothschild Hospital is filled to overflowing. Again JDC nurses and doctors are busy administering to the sick, and supplies — food, clothing and drugs — are making life livable for the destitute and miserable.

Every spring but one since liberation, the Rothschild Hospital has been the scene of crisis and emergency. But the day will come when the building can revert to its role as a healer of the sick and the weak. Then, the Rothschild Hospital will be restored to its original purpose, completely equipped again as a modern medical institution by JDC.

ISRAEL TOWNS OF 60,000 PLANNED

The town-planning program of the Jewish State of Israel will be based on the assumption that the population will exceed two million within the next ten years, according to a blueprint submitted by Anatole Solow, American expert on town and country planning who has been invited by the Israeli Ministry of Labor and Reconstruction as advisor, a Tel Aviv dispatch to The Israel Corporation of America announced. Mr. Solow stated that the greatest town-planning problem in Israel was the absorption of the population from the point of view of a rational division of industry and housing throughout the country. It was estimated that over 80 percent of the population will, for economic and other reasons, remain in urban areas, despite the intense development of agriculture. It was therefore the main task to spread industry toward the north and south, where a number of towns of about 60,000 people each, would be built. Tel Aviv and Haifa would be two metropolitan centers. The town of 60,000 would become the most typical feature of town planning backed by a rural and industrial hinterland. Apart from newly erected towns, the biblical cities of Tiberias and Beersheba would also be included in such a plan. The Israel Corporation of America has also received an announcement that prefabricated houses for the housing of new immigrants in Israel may be imported free of duty.

JERUSALEM TO BE CULTURAL CENTER

A New York Times dispatch by correspondent Gene Currivan describes the "elaborate plans which have been drawn to make Jerusalem the cultural and educational center of Israel and to double the city's population within five years." The first step, the dispatch says, will be to erect a congress hall with 1,800 seats where the World Zionist Congress will meet next year. A comprehensive rehabilitation program, most of which is ready for execution, is being underwritten by the Jewish Agency, the Jewish National Fund and private capital. Some aspects of it, such as roads, utilities and the erection of buildings for small industries, are being undertaken by the state itself. There will be a large hotel in the center of Jerusalem, a university city on Mount Scopus where the Hebrew University now stands and an airport within Jerusalem. Work projects have been planned to provide employment for additional thousands while lucrative contracts will be offered to those already in the city. The hotel planned for the center of the city will be seven stories high and have 160 beds. Construction is to start this year. The congress hall will be one of the largest projects, and construction of that building too is scheduled to start some time this year. The initial cost has been placed at $900,000, of which one-third each will be paid by the Agency, the Jewish National Fund and private capital. The building, of a native pinkish granite, will be used for all kinds of international conferences as well as concerts and ballets. On Mount Scopus, where the Hebrew University buildings are now located it is hoped to build a university city with educational institutions of all kinds, not necessarily connected with the university itself. There are also visualized plans for the manufacture of precision and optical instruments and for a large printing establishment for religious books.

• ZIONIST ORGANIZATION: First Israeli representative to attend a meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, Abraham Cahane, vice-president of the Tel Aviv and Haifa Board of Trade, was in Montreal for several days prior to his return to Israel. Resident of Palestine, now Israel, for 32 years, Mr. Cahane, acting chairman of the Kupt-Aim Bank Ltd., of Palestine, consulted with Chamber of Commerce officials in Montreal and government authorities at Ottawa. Expressing the hope that Israel and Canada would soon enter negotiations leading to a trade agreement, Mr. Cahane declared: "While we have been trading to some extent with Canada, there is room for a great expansion in this direction. We need Canadian lumber, paper, milk powder, tinned meat, canned fish, as well as heavy equipment for building, etc., and Canada is in long supply of these commodities. Israel can sell Canada wines, brandy, chocolates, wool piece goods and many other products." Israel was more than anxious to effect trade agreements with neighboring Arab states, said Mr. Cahane, who disclosed that such a pact would be consummated in the immediate future. He thought the possibilities of an Egyptian-Israeli trade accord were also very good and he also foresaw negotiations with India for jute, Ceylon for tea and rice, and with Australia. Israel was also interested in abolition of trade barriers and elimination of discriminatory practices in connection with transportation and freight insurance, fair treatment in foreign investments and international arbitration in trade disputes, Mr. Cahane said. The Jewish Agency is training a group of young Jewish people in Israel for a year, teaching them for six months in Hebrew, literature, history, and related subjects at the Youth Seminar in Jerusalem; and for the other six months in communal settlements. Forty young people will fly on Sunday, June 26, from New York, for Israel. Five Canadians, who were selected from Zionist Youth Movements, are: Miss Shulamith Rozalinsky, 132 Clermont Street; David Kenner, 5947 Hutchison Street; Miss Gilda Rockfeld, 102 Huron Street, Toronto, Ont.; Miss Bracha Soloway, of Winnipeg, Man.; Isaac Gliener, of Edmonton, Alta. A heavy cold in hot weather is an affliction of the most unpleasant type. Such colds are often contracted by people who, in a desperate attempt to keep cool at night, peel off all the bedclothes and expose themselves to the night breezes. This procedure frequently means a chill that brings on a cold. It's wise to keep in mind that the temperature frequently drops late at night. It's usually unwise, also, to leave a fan operating in a bedroom at night. Summer colds can be unpleasant. Guard against them.

IRAQI STUDENT

1947. When granted, it said, such visas required an $8,000 deposit subject to forfeit for failure to return within a specified time. Families of non-returning Jews, Dr. Robinson said, are "threatened with confiscation of their property and with personal maltreatment."

As to economic burdens on Jews, Dr. Robinson said: "In a single three-week period from Sept. 1, 1948, to Sept. 20, 1948, the Iraqi newspapers reported hundreds of dismissals of Jewish employees from the Railway Department, the Post Office, and Telegraph Department and the Finance Ministry.

"The Executive Department of Iraqi ordered the dismissal of Jewish workers and officials in all branches of the government, and the 'suggestion' was advanced by the Iraqi government to oil companies and to other international businesses operating in Iraq not to accept Jewish employees.

"Jews have been forbidden by government edict to engage in banking or foreign currency transactions and have been denied export and import licenses. New licenses and renewal of licenses have been denied to Jewish physicians."

The affidavit asserted Jews had been jailed for "Zionism" on such evidence as receipt of American press clippings referring to recognition of Israel, "or because a booklet on first aid has been found in their possession, or because, according to an official Iraqi radio broadcast of January 19, 1949, they were found to possess New Year's greeting cards on which was imprinted the Star of David."

Mr. Frisch declined to name any of the State Department officials who were "pro-Arab". He identified them only as part of the "invisible empire that finds it difficult, even at this late hour, to accept the thought of a Jewish state."

NEW SETTLEMENTS PLANNED IN ISRAEL

Sixty new settlements will be founded in Israel during the next six months, it was announced by Yehuda Horin, director of the Jewish Agency's settlement department. According to present plans, he said, 10,000 new immigrant families will be settled soon in 18 of the proposed new colonies. According to Israeli Government plans for development of the country, 20 percent of the nation's population will be employed on the land in agricultural pursuits, the Ministry of Agriculture said. This population ratio, it said, should make the country self-sufficient in production of dairy products, poultry and eggs and give it 50 percent of its bread grain requirements. A Ministry spokesman explained, that the area devoted to the growing of vegetables had been doubled in the last year and that it would be redoubled by the end of this year. This would give Israel 4,000,000 dunams devoted to the cultivation of vegetables.

interest in recrimination. They do not forget that the English, and especially certain great Englishmen, gave them their opportunity years ago, and they believe that the English people have always been sympathetic to the aspirations of Zionism. Streets and buildings are named for famous Englishmen, and many of the Jews in Palestine today are of English origin."

The Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society (HIAS) was informed by the Finance Committee of the Polish Government, in Warsaw, that the Society's four offices in Poland will be permitted to expend funds for the aid of Jews emigrating from that country and for the procurement of documents for these emigrants. According to Isaac L. Asofsky, HIAS Executive Director, that the funds may be used to the Polish Government stipulated purchase shipping space aboard Gdynia America Line and Cunard White Star Line ships. HIAS, which continues to operate in Poland in behalf of refugees and emigrants, is to make a report on its expenditures every three months to the Polish Government, and transmit its monies from America through the Narodowy Bank Polski in Warsaw.

Experience in the Public Service COUNTS

GEORGE DREW

Alderman, Mayor, Provincial Party Leader, Three Times PREMIER OF ONTARIO . . .

Then—
LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION in The House of Commons, Ottawa.

No other national leader can match this record of public service on ALL LEVELS OF GOVERNMENTAL ACTIVITY.

George Drew, more than any other national leader knows that government—to remain DEMOCRATIC, —must remain in the hands of the people. As an alderman he concerned himself with the problems of his ward. As mayor, he worked for a better community. As provincial legislator, he worked in the interests of the people of his constituency. As Premier of Ontario he gave his native province the finest administration in its history . . . George Drew has succeeded as an administrator because he believes in TEAMWORK and CO-OPERATION on all levels of government.

As PREMIER OF ONTARIO he held more cabinet meetings and with greater frequency than any government in Ontario's history. As leader of the official opposition at Ottawa, he brought new life and energy into the House of Commons, and a renewed respect for the principle of Parliamentary Government.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATES give wholehearted support to George Drew because they will be Members of Parliament in FACT as well as in NAME. No longer will members be forced to yield all power to bureaucratic cabinet ministers and centralizers and fail to give full representation TO THEIR CONSTITUENCIES . . . Compare the records of George Drew and YOUR PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE candidate with those of other party leaders and candidates.

Your vote on June 27th for your PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE will mean that you will be represented in Parliament by a supporter of A PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE GOVERNMENT under the leadership of George Drew.
